

The Potted Plants

June 15, 1953

The Guilty Emperor of the United Empire came up to the North Country for the Dartmouth commencement. This pompous hypocrite wished to have his subjects think of him as he thinks of himself - as the Beloved Emperor - so he had this visit blown up with all the phony splendor that the kept press and the crawling radio could work up. Great throngs of adorers milled about, swelled notably by an array of special cops, twelve hundred of them, who at great cost to somebody were ordered there to keep some worshiper from pelting the August One with an overripe orchid or a sharp rose petal. Mine sappers, engineers and special agents went on ahead as they used to for Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and other Beloved Emperors who expected a hand grenade from every opened window.

The speech which Emperor Ike mouthed to the graduates was not worthy of the preparations but it was significant for its revelation of the philosophy which continues to dominate the White House in the Second, or "Republican" Dynasty of the Marxist Dealers as it did under Truman and Roosevelt of the First or "Democratic", Dynasty. Since the Throne-warmer and his stockholders both at the Imperial Court and in all the provincial branches of it, all guaranteed this nation a complete change in philosophy with the change in Dynasty, and since this guarantee, like so many other guarantees made by Ike & Co. has turned out to be a mockery, the people have a right to kick about it and are likely to become quite boorish.

The Dartmouth speech is a frivolous utterance with undertones of immorality. Eisenhower said "I am going to talk about fun, joy, happiness - just fun in life..... Unless each day can be looked back upon by an individual as one in which he has had some fun, some joy, some real satisfaction, that day is a loss. It is un-Christian and wicked, in my opinion, to allow such a thing to occur." All of us in our long upward climb have had many days which offered neither fun nor joy nor any satisfaction except that of being able to hang on and take a beating and President Eisenhower has certainly shown the world his contempt and disapproval of that kind of satisfaction. By the words of Eisenhower the early Christians themselves were often un-Christian and wicked as they had many days with out fun and any joy or satisfaction they were able to squeeze out of the situation were of a sort which Eisenhower would not be able to understand, but would have rebuked and condemned as he has rebuked and condemned the firm stand of the ROIs against his own outrageous perfidy. You should be more careful the way you kick around the word "Christian". Eisenhower! Your words have merely made clear why that other self-righteous emperor, Nero, grabbed his fiddle and played with maniacal joy while the city burned and his subjects perished. He just hadn't had his fun that day.

So from fun Eisenhower goes to the field of standards of ethics and suchlike high moral considerations which he feels his position qualifies him to expound. The golfing talk is a smart casual touch and is going to be the American equivalent of the "British" "it isn't cricket". These sporting clichés are intended to refer to an aristocratic sensitivity for values but the impatient people of this nation are beginning to chafe at the aristocratic willingness to condone damnable things while chattering about niceties.

Eisenhower and the White House Court may be finicky about their golf scores, but like Truman and Roosevelt they are revoltingly indifferent to dishonesty in themselves and among their supporters. They are all dishonest about money, about their gilded word and about past performances and future hopes. Aristocrats like Roosevelt were born with a contempt for middle class morality and such parvenu aristocrats as Sherman Adams catch on with a speed which indicates natural aptitude for the easy morals of the privileged and the disdain of horse-and-buggy ideals like paying for things or telling the truth or keeping promises. So Eisenhower and the blue flag nobility make the rounds of college graduations hoping they can persuade all the bright young men to embrace this same haughty noblesse-oblige creed of having the laws swept away when they prove inconvenient and charging off debts to the future and promises to the ash can but nevah, nevah, nevah "teeing off in the rough".

And now for the pay off, where he urges the lads not to join the book burners but to live it up and read everything and then they will find out for themselves. This is the line pushed by the Mag Express, Eleanor Roosevelt who wanted every girl to drink until she found out how much she could hold so she would be able to hold her liquor like a lady. For anyone to refrain from drinking was "narrow" and "uncourageous" because the Few Dealers, then as now, wanted every young person to indulge in all the swinish vices of Eleanor's corrupt and dissolute court, so everybody would know about "life".

Eisenhower will never learn that the Marxist Dealers of the Second Dynasty under the blue U.N. flag, still cannot force the American people to accept the rotten fruits from the broken trees of the Old World.
